

Happy Mother's Day, Polly

Allen got a new puppy for Christmas and named him Patches because his fur has big brown spots. Allen loves his new pet and plays with him all the time. They go for walks together and cuddle in the big recliner to watch television. At night, Allen’s mom lets Patches sleep on a dog bed in his room.

Allen’s puppy came from his Uncle Bob’s farm. Uncle Bob’s dog Polly had a litter of seven puppies. When they were old enough, Allen was invited to the farm to choose one to keep for his very own.

On Mother’s Day, Allen asked his mother if they could go visit Uncle Bob. She thought that was a good idea, so they planned to have a picnic lunch on the farm. When they arrived, Allen’s mother noticed him carrying a wrapped package. Polly was there barking a happy greeting. Allen walked directly over to her, opened the package, and gave her its contents. He had brought Polly a box full of dog biscuits. She was Patches' mommy, and he thought Mother’s Day was the perfect time to thank her for letting him have Patches.
